OFFICE
INAUGURAL PROGRAMME,
1220 and 1222 Penna. Avenue.
T. H. S. BOYD Publisher.

GEN. GARFIELD will be the 20th President of the United States, and his inauguration marks the close of the 20th year of the supremacy of the Republican party.

The National Capital will on the 4th of March present a scene of grandeur and beauty never witnessed on any similar occasion. The grand Avenue will be festooned by thirty-eight arches, representing the different States, and so arranged on the intersecting streets as not to obstruct the view of the whole length of this magnificent boulevard. The entrance to the Executive Grounds will be through an Arch of Triumph, whose architectural pretensions make it a grand feature. The style is German Renaissance, and consists of two square towers, spanned by an arch and capped by a very high belfry, from which it is intended to send forth a joyous peal from a chime of bells.

The military display promises to surpass anything witnessed since the close of the war, when the legions of Grant and Sherman passed in triumph through the Capital of the Nation they had saved. The line will extend from the President's House to the Capitol Grounds, and will mark an epoch in our history when hate and strife gives way to love and peace, and combatants become chivalrous rivals and friends—and the blue and gray join in civic procession to do honor to the Chief of a united and prosperous people.

The Bureau of Public Comfort have provided suitable halls and accommodations of every kind, where all that come may be provided for at the minimum of expense. The people of the city—always hospitable—have on this occasion thrown wide open their doors, and extend a joyous welcome to all their friends.

The Grand Reception and Promenade Concert and Ball is intended to close the festivities with becoming clat. The National Museum Building, erected by the Government of the United States for the purpose of displaying the productions of the arts and industries of the world, has been very generously placed at the disposal of the Committee in charge of the Ball. With a capacity for 20,000, the Committee have wisely limited the tickets to 8,000, in order to secure perfect comfort.

The Germania Orchestra of Philadelphia, consisting of 100 pieces, will furnish the dancing music, and a separate band of 50 pieces the promenade music.

A feature of the occasion will be the number of distinguished persons present at this Reception, Never before has it happened that the President, the retiring President, and all the ex-Presidents living have been assembled on one occasion, and the record of tickets purchased, which show the name and residence of the purchaser, indicate that the wealth and culture of the country will be represented.

Arrangements have been made with the different railroads with reference to special rates organizations and the public, and ample facilities both to and from are offered to all who wish to avail themselves of this opportunity to visit the Capital of the Nation. The different public buildings will be decorated, and a generous spirit of rivalry prevails among our citizens, so that the display of burning during the day and the illuminations and fireworks at night will entertain those who are not participating in the festivities of the reception.

ATTENTION is called to the following circular issued by Col. H. C. Corbin, Assistant Adjutant-General, U. S. A., and Corresponding Secretary of the Committee:

"This Committee is in receipt of letters from many organizations, military and civic, announcing an intention to be present at the Inaugural Ceremonies in this city on the 4th of March next. It is already apparent that the attendance will be larger and the parade grander than on any similar occasion in the history of our country. The citizens of Washington, represented by this Committee, wish by fittingly decorating the Capital and giving all proper attention to visiting companies to contribute their full share to the success of the pageant. In order that so many visitors may be properly received by the different Sub-Committees among which the duties of the day have been divided, and suitable assignments given them in the procession, it is essential that this Committee should be furnished at once with the information called for by the annexed memorandum: Name of organization in full and name and address of its commanding officer; number of members who will come to Washington; character of the organization, and whether armed or unarmed, uniformed or ununiformed, mounted or unmounted—if composed exclusively of veterans of the late war, state the fact; whether it will bring a band with it, and if so, the number of instruments; on what day it will reach Washington, and how long it expects to stay; whether it has already engaged quarters in Washington, and if so, where—give the street and number if possible; the name and address of the agent of the organization in Washington, if any. You are, therefore, requested to fill up the blanks in this memorandum, and return as soon as you conveniently can.

"This Committee will do all in its power to provide for the comfort of such organizations as may give it notice of their coming. It cannot, of course, furnish quarters or subsistence; and that there may be no trouble on this score it is earnestly requested that each visiting organization send an agent to this city, or appoint some one already here, to act as such agent, with authority to make contracts on its behalf for quarters and subsistence. Such agent should report to these Headquarters, where he will receive information as to rooms and prices, and will be aided in finding accommodations for his organization. This Committee cannot be responsible for any discomfort which may result from failure to act upon this suggestion.

"It is also recommended that each visiting organization shall, when it arrives within three hours' ride of the Capital, telegraph the fact to this Committee."

Inaugural Notes.

In future issues of THE PROGRAMME will appear full page views of the Museum Building, consisting of outside view of building, interior view of Ball-room, with its decorations for the Grand Inaugural Ball, as also the floor plan containing dressing-rooms, hat-rooms, lunch-rooms, and President's Reception room.

THE GRAND RECEPTION AND BALL which is to be given in the new National Museum building on the night of the 4th of March, is to pale into insignificance all previous efforts in this direction; and it is safe to say a more magnificent gathering in a more commodious and elegantly arranged building has never been witnessed on this continent.

CALIFORNIA.—San Francisco has subscribed $40,000 to send a military company to Washington, and, in addition to this, we understand that there will be one or two veteran organizations.

MAJOR JAS. McNABB, Jr., with Mr. Joseph L. Savage, have had manufactured a handsome Inauguration Badge, which they are selling at a reduced figure, particularly to Clubs intending to participate in the Inaugural Procession.

THE number of tickets of admission to the Ball-Room will be absolutely limited to 8,000, and no free list will be allowed. This rule will be so strictly enforced that we understand the invited guests will be limited to the retiring President, the President and Vice-President elect, and possibly Generals Grant and Hancock.

THE details for carrying into effect all the various arrangements attending the assembling of such a vast crowd of persons are being perfected with marvelous rapidity, full particulars of which, together with the names of the gentlemen having them in charge, we will publish in our next.

The price of the Ball tickets has been fixed at five dollars for each person, and arrangements are being completed for the erection of a suitable room where a lunch, consisting of cold meats, sandwiches, cream, &c., may be procured. It is not intended that this lunch, which will be substantial rather than showy, shall exceed more than one dollar for each person.

Fourth of March Mementoes and Ball-Room Decorations, including the beautiful green garlands, with the white, red, blue, and yellow flounces attached, that decorate the interior of the National Museum, will be sold after the Ball to all who may wish to procure them as a memento of this great and glorious occasion for six cents per yard. For large quantities a liberal discount will be made. Address, Melutire & Co., Marshall House, Washington, D. C.

THE music for the occasion will be furnished by several of the finest bands in the Union. A special band of over one hundred pieces, with musicians selected from the country at large, and drilled into perfection by one of the best leaders in the United States, will furnish the dancing music.

The reception of the President will probably be from 9 to 11, when dancing will commence. Special Bands will furnish promenade music in the intervals of dancing, and sets will be formed to the sound of the cornet.

The floor will be presided over by the best-looking young men in Washington at the time, under the leadership of Maj. Geo. M. Lockwood, Chief Clerk of the Interior Department.

The magnificent hall has a dancing capacity for six hundred sets, and from its peculiar cruciform shape, every part will be within easy hearing distance of the music.

The members of the Diplomatic Corps and the officers of the Army and Navy, together with the visiting military organizations, will be in uniform. The dome of the building will be illuminated by the electric light and the entire sides and pillars will be ablaze with gas-jets. In the centre of the Hall will stand a grand image of America, and pendant to every arch and projection will hang the coats-of-arms of the different States and Territories. These features, taken together with the beautiful dressing of the ladies, must produce an effect not often seen in this country.

AMERICA'S SALUTATION.

FRSIDENT GARFIELD.

Our Nation's Chief! with honors that demand
The highest fitting of recording pen,
We hail you, and salute you, as we stand
Proudly before you, free and free born men;
And to your wise devotion we consign
Our Union's welfare and its grand design.

Not with the royal purple we enfold,
Nor shining sceptre in your hand we place;
Your diadem is not a crown of gold,
But the free suffrage of a loyal race.
Born of the people! Chosen for your worth!
That makes the fairest majesty on earth!

Between the waves that wash our eastern lines,
And those that dash the sunsets in the west,
Between the boundaries marked by northern pines,
And where the cocoa rears its fruitful crest,
Your arm extends—nor circumscribed by these,
But where our commerce rides the common seas.

How grand the view! Greece, in her proudest day,
Never such wealth of empire could present;
Nor Rome, before her downfall and decay,
Such realm, so bounded, of such vast extent;
Nor either, men of worthier, higher stamp,
On rostrum eloquent, and brave in camp.

See, everywhere, our bright and smiling homes,
By every fireside happiness increase;
Hear the free fests and the graceful domes
Catch and re-echo thoughtful words of peace—
Of noblest import—freedom from the thrall
That once held dark dominion over all.

See wealth accruing; every art advance;
States multiply; imperial cities grow;
Science and education couch the lance,
All ancient ignorance to overthrow;
And, wise in scope, conception, and in clause,
Our Nation's Charter and her equal laws.

What higher hope can fire the human soul,
What loftier aim or impulse be desired
Than this, that man his destiny control
By sovereign right? The thought of men-inspired!
A sceptred Idea! The supremest truth,
Earth-born, by wise men nurtured in its youth!

Prophetic vision sees the coming dawn
Or fairer light, to unify mankind,
When man will scorn to bend the knee, and fawn,
But stand, redeemed of shame, and free in mind!
To lead men be our mission and our aim,
Our wise endeavor and our constant claim.

We do not bid you wear your laurel well,
As, half convinced, our thought would fear confess,
For your fair record things of honor tell,
And prophecy were vain and useless guess.
Take, then, our country's diadem, and feel
All that our higher thought cannot reveal!

O D E .

Columbia to glory
In grandeur arise;
In song and in story
A world with thee vies.
The hands of the bravest,
In the homes of the free,
The hearts of the truest,
Do honor to thee.

Chorus:

O, sisterhood of States,
Phalanx mighty and grand,
A wondrous world awaits
Thy march in Freedom's land.
Open wide the golden gates,
Lead in Redemption's plan
For Liberty and Right,
The Brotherhood of Man.

The Union now, ever
Cemented with blood,
May nothing it sever,
O merciful God!
From ocean to ocean,
From mountain to sea,
A loyal devotion,
Our country to thee.

O green be forever
The hallowed sod
Where feet of the Pilgrims
And martyrs have trod!
O, Savior, Redeemer,
From shore unto shore
May peace, the white angel,
Dwell now evermore.

THE GRAND FETE
TO
GARFIELD AND ARTHUR
AT THE
NATIONAL MUSEUM BUILDING.

The grand National Museum Building has been generously tendered by the Government to the Executive Committee, who have in charge the Inaugural ceremonies. This building is a wonder in architectural beauty. It is constructed of red brick, interspersed with ornamental tiles, cruciform in shape, each nave being 327 feet, and, including façades, covering an area of 3 acres.

The decorations are artistic, munificent, and attractive, embellished by the coats-of-arms of the different States, handsomely festooned with State flags and seals. The space devoted to the promenades is ample and complete for 8,000, and when viewed from the balconies will present a tableau which will ever be remembered.

MUSEUM BUILDING,

Grand Ball will be held on March 4, 1881.

In the central dome is a colossal Statue of America, illustrative of peace, justice, and liberty; grasping in her uplifted hand an electric light, indicative of the skill, genius, progress, and civilization of the 19th century.

Radiating from this centre are 17 palisades, which will, by their effective illumination, present a scene of beauty and magnificence on the night of the 11th of March, never witnessed before on the American continent.

The magnificent balconies that overlook this grand amphitheatre will be resplendent with the wealth, culture, and intelligence of this great nation. The grand entrance to this model structure is through a covered archway leading to the vestibules, from which radiate the corridors, in which are arranged the hat and coat-rooms, retiring-rooms, &c.

This grand fete, in which the Army, Navy, and Diplomatic Corps, with their insignia of rank in rivalry with civilians, accompanied by richly-attired and handsome ladies, will move in triumph through the grand arches in symphony to the joyous paeans of an orchestra composed of a 100 pieces. On arriving at the Presidential dais they will be received by President Garfield, assisted by Vice-President Arthur, ex-President Hayes, Gen. Hancock, and other distinguished gentlemen, when the new President will receive the congratulations of a united and prosperous people.
